STEGGLES OF A MONSTER. - Early Monday SUPER-PHOS. OF LIME, afternoon Barnum's large rhinoceres, then on usual excitement, and presently began a vigor-ous assault upon the iron bars of the eage, THE ATLANTIC AND VIRGINIA FER-TILIZING COMPANY. exhibition in Philadelphia. gave signs of unvainly endeavoring to break through, and soon after died. The Philadelphia Telegraph says:

"The struggles of the great brute drew a crowd around the cage, but when the woodwork began to succumb to the furious assaults that there was great danger of its escaping from its confinement, the feeling of enriesity from its confinement, the feeling of curiosity gave way to that of fear, and when the huge monster, with a terrific sport and powerful uptop of the cage, ripping it off as though it was thin gauze, the crowd became paralyzed with thin gauze, the crowd became paralyzed with fear. As it was, the cage was torn and shattered so as to render it unfit for further | . use, and had the paroxysm continued a few moments longer, loss of human life might have resulted. The dead animal was the largest one of its species in the country, and cost nearly $20,000. It is understood that it died from a fit. The corpus will be sent to the Smithsonian CUANO! Institute for preservation.

Then store them in bulk where they may be kept dry, and at a temporature of 40 to 50 degrees; 45 degrees is about right, and the more uniform the temperature the better. They must be kept dry as well as warm. They should be put in bulk where they are to be kept, and handled as little as possible, being dug before the dround freezes, though if the frost has blackenbd the vines, it does not necessarily harm the tubers. After the sweating process is concluded, throw over them dry loam, or in the South they are covered slightly with the foliage of pines and then with about four inches of earth, ventilation being left until they cease sweating. But if you insure them dryness and 45 degrees warmth, and do not bruise them in handling them, they may be kept as well as Irish po-
